

ABSTRACT

A separation cartridge is disclosed which comprises a first separation medium, a second separation medium, and a frame. The second separation medium is positioned adjacent to the first separation medium.

- 5 The frame is configured to hold the first and second separation mediums. The separation cartridge is configured to separate one or more entrained substances from a gas stream in a hood system.